

The solution to this is connected to the a-la-carte programming issue. If we could really have choice, people could simple exclude paying for channels where they feel the content is violent of unappropriate.

Additionally, these same people who complain about violence on TV let their kids watch the TV without an rules or supervision.